Using Gospel Tracts

Good gospel tracts written for children can be a great help in several ways.

First, when a child responds to the invitation but does not indicate a readiness to receive Christ, a tract can be sent home to reinforce the evangelistic teaching. As part of immediate follow-up, tracts dealing with Christian growth can be given to those making decisions.

Tracts can be routinely sent home with any first-time visitors.

Try challenging the believing children to share the gospel with friends and give them tracts to help them get started.

Great children's tracts are available from Child Evangelism Fellowship.
